"THE DEBUTANTE" SCORED BIG TRIUMPH LAST NIGHT

Beautiful and Musicianly Stellar Debut.

By JULIA CHANDLER MANZ.

The first metropolitan appearance of Miss Hazel Dawn as a star in her own right proved a distinct triumph both for the dainty young celebrity and for Victor Herbert, composer of "The Debutante." the new operetta which had its practical premiers at the New National Theater last night.

The piece is programmed as a musical omedy, but the beautiful and musicianly score entitles it to a greater degree of distinction. Certainly in all his pro-lific career Mr. Herbert never treated an audience to such a continued wealth of melody as that which lilts through "The Debutante" from curtain to curtain. One usually anticipates in the announcement of a musical play a single waitz theme which is reiterated with such frequency as to tease one's very soul. And the anticipation usually becomes a reality, the average composer seeming to feel that one real melody to a musical comedy is enough enjoyment for anybody's two dollars. Not so with Mr. Herbert, for the measure of melody in "The Debutante" is pressed down and running over.

An equal amount of praise cannot be bestowed upon the book, for which Harry B. Smith is responsible. The plot of the little romance is sufficiently cobesive, but the comedy element lacks both humor and spontanelty, so that it is a most fortunate thing for Miss Dawn's first starring venture that Robert B. Smith has done better in the matter of the lyrics, and that Mr. Herbert has excelled even his former successes in the quality of his ccore. His own capable baton guided the orchestra last night, and won complete and first christening name is not divulged—it that each considers him-self as the genius to whom the big success of their business is due. George is the original compounder of the pill, but its color has been designed by T. who also has evolved the particularly attractive container for his boon to dyspeptic mankind. The partners disagree of his ccore. His own capable baton guided the orchestra last night, and won the appreciation of an audience which accorded almost every musical number a complete ovation.

Of course everybody who saw "The Pink Lady" will remember the vision of loveliness in r ik. Last night Miss Dawn was no less exquisite in her billowy blue. Her ethereal beauty is the spring-time incarnate. Her voice has gained in both power and expression since last I heard it, and was delightful last evening in her "Professor Cupid" and "Call Around Asain" solo numbers, and even more effective in her "Golden Age" duet, sung with Alan Mudie; "The Love of the Lorelei," in which she was ably assisted by Mr. Mudie and Robert G. Pitkin; "Never Mention Love When We're comfiture. He carries his plan to make comfiture. He carries his plan to make

POLI'S.

"The Seven Sisters."

A Hungarian flavor gives a new and welcome relish to the dist of comedy offered by the Poli company this week, in "The Seven Sisters," adapted from the Magyar by Edith Ellis. The very title suggests unlimited possibil-ities in the way of romantic complications, and this expectation is completely borne out by the fact that each one of the four sparkling acts ends with an engagement. Any one insisting on seven engagements must wait and Chamber of Commerce. The score for the author to add a sequel for the three youngest sisters, who have still a few years to pass in the age of to the Washington Chamber of Commerce dollies.

Taking the sisters in ascending or-ship committee: James A. Bailey, James

family average, but who must await her turn in the matrimonial proces-sion, has another excellent opportunity to endear herself with the Poli adherents. Miss Morgan's appealing per-sonality carries the part along with unfailing charm and at the most interesting points flashes into a brillian style of acting that is most promising with regard to the more serious roles

Miss Ruby Raymond, a local favorite whose return to the stage is always wel-comed, is seen as the third sister, and Misses Marie Carroll and Louise Kent are the charming leaders of the group, Carl Brickert is alert, agile, and amusing as the young lieutenant who might have made a crack salesman, so adeptly does he ispose of the three older sisters who stand in the way of his own good fortune.

Stanley James deserves credit for making a success of the role of Calcard Padents and the standard page.

Laughable characters are expert-ly played by Herbert Dobblins, William Evarts, and Hardie Meakin, and Russell Fillmore is effective as Sandorffy, the lieutenant and member of Parlian Miss Adah Sherman makes a most capa ble mother for the seven sisters.

B. F. KEITH'S.

High-class Vaudeville,

Irene Franklin, at the top of an exellent bill, captured the honors at B F. Keith's Theater yesterday afternoon and last night. The former comedy star makes six changes and sings six songs as only she can sing them, and was awarded the popular decision if applause means commendation. At the plane is Miss Franklin's husband, Burton Green, who also received his share of the ap-plause, his rendition of Victor Herbert's latest opera especially deserving praise. Senator's wife, who wants to become beautiful, interprets the role in a most efficient manner while her support is splendid.

The rest of the bill is composed "Blackface" Eddle Ross; Sim Collins and Lewis Hart; The Harry Lauder singing and talking pictures; Butler Haviland and Alice Thornton; Manton and Harris; The Madgley's and the Hearst-Selig
